MASTERS AND KINNEAR AGAIN ARRAIGNED TODAY

Once Convicted, Court Orders New Trial for Alleged Embezzlers of Fraternity Funds.

Samuel J. Masters and John B. Kinnear, former master workman and grand scribe, respectively, of a fraternal organization known as the Modern Workmen of the World, were called to trial before Chief Justice Covington in Criminal Division No.

World, were called to trial before Chief Justice Covington in Criminal Division No. 1 of the District Supreme Court on a charge of embezzlement. The men were convicted about eighteen months ago, but the conviction was set aside in the Court of Appeals and a new trial ordered.

The charge against the men is that they appropriated to their own use commanded and they appropriated to their own use commanded out of the funds of the organization. They denied fraudulent intent, but were not allowed to show that at the first trial.

The appellate court held they were entitled to explain to the jury whether the money was taken innocently or fraudulently.

At the request of Assistant United States Attorneys Hawken and Laws, after the jury was sworn today, the introduction of testimony was deferred until tomorrow. The prosecutors suggested that in the interest of time saving they be allowed the remainder of the day to arrange the documentary evidence for presentation to the jury. The defendants are represented by Attorneys Wilton J. Lambert and Henry E. Davis of the local bar and Attorney J. K. M. Norten of Alexandria, Va.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Common garden Sage and Sulphur makes streaked, faded or gray hair dark and glossy at once.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly com-pounded, brings back the natural color and luster to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years

NORTH SEA BATTLE HAILED IN ENGLAND AS GREAT VICTORY

There was given out in London today a further recital of conditions at the front by an eyewitness attached to the British general staff. It is dated Thursday, January 19, at the British general headquarters in France. A synopsis of it follows:

None of Family Meets Him.

Thaw reached New York yesterday from New Hampshire in custody of Sheriff Hornbeck of Dutchess county. No member of Thaw's family was at the station to meet him, and his mother, Mrs. Mary C. Thaw, was not permitted to visit him at the Tombs. Abel I. Smith, ir., counsel for Thaw, called there, but was told that he could not see his client until today without an order from the supreme court. Thaw made no complaint, and, according to the keepers, remained cheerful.

John B. Stanchfield, who heads the legal staff for the defense, in speaking of his plans, said that Justice Davis will fix the time for trial. He did not anticipate, he said, that the trial would take place before a month or six weeks. No member of Thaw's family was a "Trobably," the correspondent adds, "the squadrons met in the early morning, and apparently a running fight of a hundred miles or more occurred at thirty miles an hour. It does great credit to the marksmanship of the British gunners that at such a rate of speed they should have inflicted such serious damage on the retreating enemy.

"The names of the four German'cruisers include all the effective vessels of this class in German waters, except the Yon Der Tann, which recently was reported to have sustained an injury of some sort. Thus, with the Bluecher sunk and two others damaged, the strength of the German battle fleet in this respect has been reduced to a couple of ships.

pueblos, but always the caciques have the deciding voice.

Thus at the San Juan pueblo, in New Mexico, the governor is selected by the chief cacique, his choice communicated lesser caciques, who in turn lay it before the council for ratification. The council always ratifies. There is absolutely no danger of insurgency, because of the awe in which the chief cacique is held.

The other officers, who are generally a lieutenant governor, a fiscal chief, a war captain and a lieutenant war captain, are selected in the same way.

In the pueblo of Taos, situated near the Colorado line in New Mexico, the method allows a little more latitude to the council. Three or four men are named by the chief caciquo, and the council then decides by a vote which one is to have the office.

The council is made up of the "principales" of the pueblo, and they are men who have held office and are, therefore, also the choice of the caciques. Thus, the control of the pueblo by these men is absolute, although never exercised directly.

This is a brief outline of the so-called "democratic" government of the Pueblo Indians, and it explains a great many things about their social and economic customs.

The Whole Family Reads The Star

In nearly 90% of the homes of Washington The Star is a daily visitor—and its welcome is assured.

As the leaves of The Star are not pasted together it is easily separated and passed around to the whole family.

"Pa" reads the news—and when Jimmie gets through with the sporting page he will take a peek at that, too. "Ma" and "Susie" will take turns at the society and woman's pages—and they all enjoy "Mutt and Jeff" and the funny pictures, and what is of more vital interest to such a family than the news of the stores. The ads are the guide to wise and careful buying, and the subscription price of The Star is saved time and again by taking advantage of the exclusive bargains found only in The Star.

From the time The Star lights at the doorstep — a few minutes after it leaves the press-it is "kept busy" almost up to bedtime-for everybody in the house wants it -and in some homes where there are large families one copy of the paper will be read by as many as ten people.

Surely nothing that you can buy brings as much pleasure to the WHOLE FAMILY as The Star-and if you are not already a subscriber of The Star, hail one of The Star carrier boys as he passes your door calling "Star here" and give your order to him-or phone Main 2440-or fill out this subscription blank and mail to The Star office. You are not required to pay in advance. Collections are made at the end of each month by The Star route agents.
